

The diagram illustrates the layout for a print job. It features a central white rectangular area. This area is enclosed by a blue border, which is further enclosed by a red border. Two vertical green lines are positioned within the white area, one on the left and one on the right. A horizontal blue line runs across the middle of the white area. A horizontal red line runs across the top of the white area. Arrows point from the text labels to their respective lines: a double-headed arrow for the red line, a single-headed arrow for the blue line, and a double-headed arrow for the green lines.
